1. General Donovan told me on 14 December that a man named [REDACTED] had been to see him. [REDACTED] stated he had been with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for some time, apparently on the corporate investigation side, and was now in [REDACTED] in some sort of business. He told General Donovan that he was concerned about the information he had on large amounts of Communist money passing through Cuba and wondered how he could be put in a position to investigate further what was going on.

2. General Donovan said he told [REDACTED] that he knew nothing about the situation but would see if there were anyone who was interesting in getting in touch with him. I do not have [REDACTED] address, unfortunately, although it is possible he could be located through the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

3. This may be more properly a Contact Office matter, but I thought I would send it to you in the first instance.
